College Fair

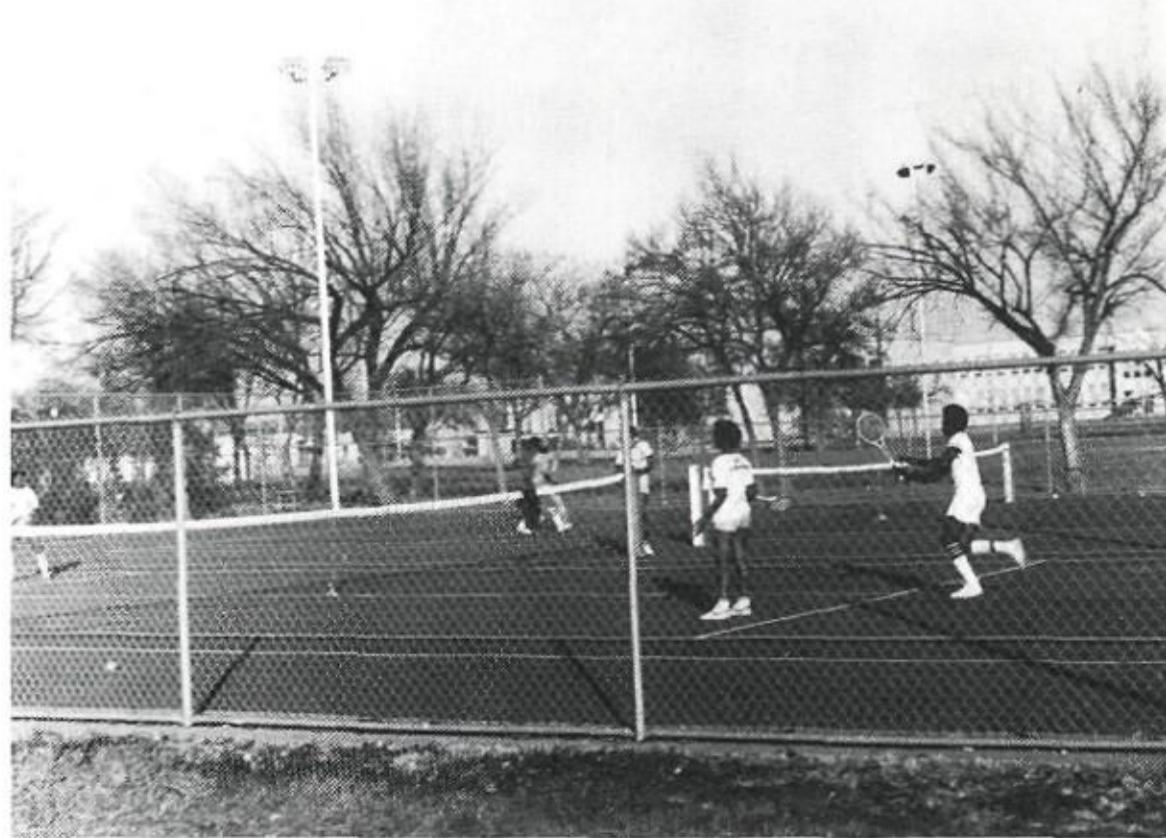

Fifty plus universities and colleges send representatives from their colleges and universities to give graduating seniors insight and particulars on their respective campuses. Senior class counselor, Eunice D. Jones, who hosted the College Fair indicated that representatives from twenty-seven states from as far away as Massachusetts (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) and as near as Dallas' Southern Methodist University attended the activity. The College Fair enabled many seniors to finalize their collegiate decisions.

Pinkston's Honore

Considered brilliant by teachers and students alike, Joseph Honore participates in all phases of the total educational process.

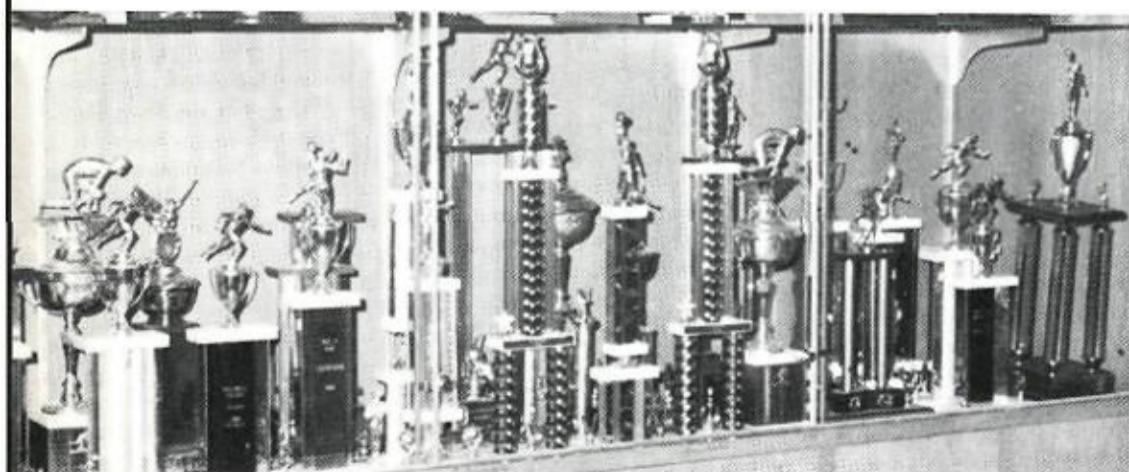

In addition to attending to all of his administrative functions and handling myriads of unanticipated problems, Mr. Honore makes it a point to be accessible to his faculty and student body. He visits classes regularly and continues to teach his English/Latin class daily, a practice he initiated four years ago.

Mr. Honore might well be considered the impetus which has molded Pinkston into a model setting for urban education. Though quiet and soft spoken, he remains in control, relating well to co-workers and students. The Honore style is low-key, but firm and professional.

It is not uncommon for Mr. Honore to address students by name, quote detailed statistics about the Pinkston budget, or to summarize new educational concepts on a national level in an off the cuff fashion. His interest in others and wide knowledge of academics set him apart as an extraordinary man in what once was an ordinary school.

Moments are to be remembered,
loved and sometimes forgotten

Moments are yearly, monthly, and weekly — day and night.

Moments are forever . . .

— K. D. Williams '80

General Superintendent Linus Wright and the board, operating with eight members, instead of the standard nine members for the most part, changed many policies and procedures to improve the quality of education in the system.

Trustees and the districts that they represent are: Robert Medrano, #8; Jill Foster, vice-president, #6; Kathlyn Gilliam, president, #9; (General Superintendent Linus Wright); Jerry Bartos, #1; Harryette Ehrhardt #2; Gerald Stanglin, #4; Brad Lapsley, #3; not pictured: Sarah Haskins, #7; not included in the picture or even on the School Board at publication time is a representative from District 5. This position was vacated earlier in the school when Trustee Robert Price resigned.

Principal Joseph L. Honore is responsible for improvements in academics (reflected via standardized test scores) honors in athletics (Pinkston shares its first district co-championship) and self-esteem is at an all-time high. Principal Honore personifies this year's Algol theme. He is a total educator and a winner, who motivates others to win. Mr. Honore does this while continuing to teach English and Latin daily, a practice he initiated when he became the chief administrator. Test results reveal some of the highest scores in the District were made by students that he teaches or has taught.

Every edition that Mrs. Castle has published has been an award winner.

This 80-81 school year has been a terrific one. There have been difficult and discouraging moments, but they have been overpowered by the thrill and excitement of the victorious moments. As we end school, our graduates will go their separate ways, but a part of them will remain here. Some of the moments this year will shape the activities for years to follow. We are saddened as our seniors staff members depart, but we realize that, THE MOMENT HAS COME."

DAUGHTER

What will you be, my darling daughter?
Will they color you pink with cockleshells and fairy bells?
Will you be the pretty maid at the end of the row?
Will they polish your nails and thin you to bone and pluck your brow and send you out to fetch a house and garden and dogs and a husband to meet on the 5:29
Will you be a nurse, a teacher, a poet, a pet?
Please wear your dungarees till the day you die, while you fly your plane, settle revolutions in Spain and calibrate instruments on the way to the moon.
What will you be, my darling daughter?
Will they let you?
Will I?

To all the Seniors of 1981:

I wish you lots of success and I trust that you will succeed in the goals and dreams that you wish to fulfill. I know that I will give it my best and that I will cherish the fun times that I experienced at Pinkston!

I thank my teachers for being educators and friends. But most of all I thank my family for helping me get through this phase of my education.

I thank my friends for being friends and loyal.

I shall remember my friends, educators, and campus life at Pinkston. I will always remember and love Pinkston.

Love to All,

Cynthia Partida — Senior '81

P.S. Fellow ViKings take care, because L.G.P. is and will remain #1.

Partida Family

I will always love and thank my family for being there and helping me. My family has always been there when I need them.

Cynthia
